

Int. 3 -
Notes by C. Langlas

6/4/90 Kaipō Roberts - in process of looking at the book, he mentioned;

- 1) Quilens grew sweet potatoes in the stone-mashed but up toward ahukū, disappear there, grow under he grew down by the beach here (sail in pakas of pakas here then), also had to have lilikoi there in the 50s (during boom when everyone planted, then market crashed)
+ grew beans, etc.; cabbages, peppers, zucchini
Oct. - Nov. good (rains), if dry packed water
- 2) Ki - used for canoe landing (was going to Ki to hopai water)
+ also for when Sam's pua
- 3) u Ohu. Kūia quate - was plenty pork to eat, plenty of dried pig ^{abaw} Kapa'ahu / would catch pigs to Kalua, then buy hew as wine (a hew sings), go to Kal. to throw net - sometimes 2, 3 day lingers
- 4) 'ulu - the roots do travel in the a'a
- 5) goats came last as far as Lau'apuki
- 6) doesn't remember his family marking their pigs / when you called any yours came / nobody would steal your pig
- 7) Kōa - but. Ki + Kupapa'u (prob. at Pii'ikea when he looked at the map) / Kiri'ahi would locate by 2 pts. on land - 1 at coast + 1 up mt. - would know when a line w. bather's red ory ma'ansi + they throw in bait + fish would appear (don't see then tell you where) keep the bait around a stone w. coconut fiber, wind around + around so goes down it, depth + then lets out 'opae sometimes calm when you went out (early morning) + then wind came up / hard to paddle back against it + high waves might wait half-hr for right swell to come in to ^{cause} ladders Second Kōa off Kupapa'u, but they seldom used

6/24/89 Kaipo Roberts, at his farmstead

- when he took his picture: They're gonna wonder, "who is this ^{guy} doing ^{all the talking}"
- he looked at photos I wanted to use & checked their accuracy, unhappy w. his language (thinks he sounds ignorant) but I said - no I like that, that's how people talk ^{& not good English} volunteered 40 fish in 1 Kaaw, 40 Kaawes in 1 laa

re p. 12
KOHPSam

I asked about canoe loader - he first fished there after WW2 he thinks (after reckoning for a while)

- not sure when exactly it was rebuilt, but he thinks in the 40's, it was broken down in the 30's & then Kani Aki, Peliholani & Jack Komele rebuilt it the old way
- had a lower floating section then, but he can't be sure about what it was like in the 20's

re p. 7
KOHPSam

"me" planted sweet amt. of tao - he & his M, just for them 2, and $\frac{1}{4}$ acre of 32 acres then used by all the Konamui family, but Kaawaloas had their own place

re p. 29
KOHPSam

I asked how he lived when he ret'd. to Kapaahu after WW2 -

- he & wife lived w. his M, she had a ^{store} "little kee" down there & he added to it, made a 4-br house & got help bldg. from Tomas Quikano
- his mom stayed w. them all the way through & finally they were living at Haim. Beach & he had to put ~~her~~ her in ext'd. care because she wandered out on the road (lots of traffic there)
- She always picked & wave landels all her life & couldn't keep her in, but her mind was going & she kept wandering
